

a la carte channels would be great. Companies package them so that you have to subscribe to those you don't want to get a few you do. They know what their doings to make more money.